WE NOMINATE

Walter Hanley Scott, one of the "unassuming powers" in the Princeton Community, who this week at age 65 rings down the curtain on four years of distinguished service as Executive Director of the Princeton United Community Fund. It was in the winter of 1956 that Scott, then contemplating retirement from the United Fund organization he had created in Pottstown, Pa., accepted Princeton's invitation to inject "new life" into a fast-fading Community Chest and to develop the sort of multi-branched agency capable of welding together the basic needs of a growing area concerned with providing essential social services.

Indicative of Scott's contributions to Princeton, where he will remain as a permanent resident of the Township, are the vital statistics bearing upon the evolution of the United Fund. Since 1955, Scott and his volunteer leadership (and the development of "depth" in leadership) may prove to be Scott's most significant contribution) have raised nearly $700,000. In the same period the number of benefiting agencies has climbed from eight to 18, the number of individual contributors from 3,600 to 7,000, and the total of campaign workers from 800 to 1,700.

Such documentation of results achieved could well be used to illustrate that Scott, the first paid executive in the "Community Chest's" history, has been an eminently capable fund-raiser. That he is, but, to his way of thinking, dollar-totals and participation-patterns have been "incidental to my life-work as a social service worker." To his Princeton assignment he brought some four decades of experience, ranging from "The Jungle" in South Philadelphia, to the Henry Street Settlement

House in New York City, to the World War II Merchant Marine.

The son of a Philadelphia Farmer, one of the last hold-outs in the once-Swedish reaches of South Philadelphia, Scott laid the groundwork for his lifelong avocation of painting as a Philadelphia high school student, earning a four-year scholarship in the Pennsylvania Museum's School of Art. He became the first man teacher in the Mount Holly (N.J.) public school system, a pioneer in the field of educational and vocational guidance for high school students in Burlington County (N.J.) and a student-worker in Manhattan, where he combined studies at Columbia and the Art Students' League with responsibilities in depression-harried slums.

Scott, probably Princeton's most accomplished amateur landscape artist, who will devote the months just ahead to a "painting cruise" in the Mediterranean with stress on the Aegean Islands, was one of the founding forces during World War II of the United Seaman's Service, the equivalent of the USO for this nation's merchant marine. In the decade immediately following V-J Day, with the joint support of the Philadelphia Community Chest and the Christian Association at the University of Pennsylvania, he brought into being the first major federation of Philadelphia's welfare and health services.

For helping create the "wonderful cooperation" to which he ascribes the mounting success of the Princeton United Fund; for establishing "the budget panels" that have brought 600-800 persons into direct contact with United Fund agencies; for exercising the kind of quiet leadership that is linked with achievement; he is Town Topics' nominee for

HAT IN THE RING

Lord Aims for Washington. Two weeks ago, New Jersey Democrats listed 14 potential candidates for the United States Senate which falls vacant in this major political year. This week, 13 of them had been eliminated as the nod went to Thorn Lord, long-time Princeton resident whose home is on Province Line Road. With the full support of his party behind him, and wholly unlikely to face primary opposition, Mr. Lord will seek to win the seat currently held by Senator Clifford Case. The latter, elected in 1954, has been the target of the ultra-conservative element within his own party for several months, and will have a primary race on his hands in April.

It is Mr. Lord's ability to earn the backing of all elements in his party that is being credited with his selection as the Democratic candidate. He was named at a meeting in New York last weekend, following attendance by Democratic leaders at a fund-raising dinner.

DEMOCRATIC CHOICE: Thorn Lord has been named to run for U.S. Senator. (Story, this page.)

A lawyer who maintains offices in Trenton, Mr. Lord has been Mercer County Democratic chairman since 1947. During that time, his party has held virtually complete control of all elective offices at the county level. All members of the New Jersey Legislature and its Board of Freeholders have been Democratic for more than a decade.

His Field Office Only Once. Although politics has long been a part of his career, Mr. Lord has held only one elective office. In 1947, he was named to the Township Committee in his home municipality of Lawrence. The following year, the chairmanship of the Democratic Committee in Mercer was offered to him, and he resigned his post as committeeman. In addition to his law practice, Mr. Lord holds a position on the Port of New York Authority. He has announced no decision as to whether he will resign either this post or the County chairmanship.

Mrs. Lord, proprietor of The Clothes Line and a former president of the Princeton Business Association, said this week that she is wholly in favor of her husband's decision. She'll campaign on his behalf if it meets with his plans for the forthcoming race, she added.

A native of Plainfield, Mr. Lord is 53 years old. He attended school in Greenville, Miss., and earned his law degree at the University of North Carolina. He has two children: a son, Thom, by a former marriage, now a Chinese language specialist with the U.S. Army in Okinawa, and Nina, a student at Princeton High School.

FLUORIDE OR NOT?
Pro and Con. In a measured, well-tempered discussion Monday night, members of the Borough Board of Health heard objections to the fluoridation of Princeton's water supply from a Township resident who pointed out that "we all drink the same water—perforce."

Another Township resident told the Borough Board that she favored fluoridation because "my dentist bills are just too high."

The chief protestant was Mrs. Sterling Anders, 601 Lake Drive, who gave brief digressions of various publications in which fluoridation has been opposed. She cited the experience of Clifton, N.J., where the Board of Health provides fluoride tablets for children under 9 whose parents request the service. Mrs. Anders suggested that this might be a more economical procedure than fluoridation, a fairer one because it would concern only families who wanted fluoride.

Richard Soddard of the Board of Health said that the Board's philosophy was that fluoridation was a matter of "nutrition" rather than of "medicine." Miss Esther Dilworth another member of the Board, felt that the word "dose," used by Mrs. Anders, was inaccurate, and that it was more appropriate to speak of improving the quality of the water.

Mrs. C. V. Kiser, 267 Hawthorne Avenue, the Township resident who thinks her dentist bills are too high, said, "I feel the water company is remiss in not giving us what we should have."

The Board asked Mrs. Anders to leave the fluoridation literature she brought so that Board members might study it. Current plans call for a Board of Health rescheduled on Page 2.

tion, which would endorse fluoridation and would ask Borough Council in turn to pass a resolution endorsing it. (See "Report from the Mayor," page 2.)

David Blake, Borough Health Officer, read two communications opposing fluoridation and one in favor of it. The Christian Science Committee on Publication registered its opposition because "religious freedom is violated" and Mrs. Richard Vaughan, 44 Princeton Avenue, said she opposed action because all sides had not been heard. She urged a referendum. The Princeton Junior Chamber of Commerce sent a letter endorsing the proposal.

A lone housebreaker was reported this week, first since Princeton Township Police asked for public cooperation in late January. . . the home of Harold E. Swartz, Princeton, Moore was entered but the family is away and the extent of the loss has not yet been determined. . . Borough police reported that an attempt was made Friday to steal radios from two cars parked in the lot at University and Edwards Place but the thief was unsuccessful on both eyes.

Valentine's Day brought a belated but welcome contribution to the Town Topics Christmas Fund, which has also been the recipient of gifts in mid-summer. . . banks and the post office will be closed Monday in observance of Washington's Birthday but virtually all stores will remain open.

TEN YEARS AGO: TOWN TOPICS, February 16, 1950: Plans were afoot to make Princeton the first Mercer County municipality to install a drunkometer in its hospital, thus providing indisputable evidence of driver intoxication. . . another precedent was set when Bryan V. Moore was elected to the Borough Board of Education, giving the Negro race its first representation in this district. . . the Princeton Skating Club set March 17 and 18 as the dates for its winter carnival, and announced that Miss Joan Brunner had won its senior ladies' championship, with Augustus Hult named the senior men's champion.

Injuries felled two members of the Fire Department as a blaze at 44 Humbert Street sent John J. Golden to the hospital with smoke inhalation, and a fire alarm at Jefferson and Franklin resulted in William Gunn's being thrown from an engine while it was rounding the corner on the way to the scene. . . Ingrid Bergman's private affairs were creating such headlines that The Playhouse postponed a booking to rush "Stormbolt" to the screen.

On the business scene, Tony Nini and Joe Tunney were operating the Nassau Taxi Service, the Shesler Motor Co. was selling Packards at 229 Nassau Street and lingerie for the spring season was being offered by the Bert Ann Shop at 188 Nassau, the town's largest independent food market was Bannman's at 10 Nassau, the Tiger Market at 48 Leigh Avenue was offered for sale because of the owner's ill health, and Skillman and Skuman listed a brand new, six-room house for $14,750.

Names that were in the news: Pat Starbush and Betty Weber for taking part in the Theatre Intime's production of "King Lear" . . . William Leonard, Peter Ivieley and George Barclay for staging a panel discussion on "The Far East" and U. S. Foreign Policy before members of the American Veterans Committee Chapter at Avalon. . . Carlos H. Baker, 40-year old Professor of English at Princeton and member of the Borough Board of Education, was Town Topics' Man of the Week.

22 TEACHERS LEAVING

Borough Vacancies Expected. A total of 22 teachers are planning to resign from Princeton Borough schools at the end of the school year, it was revealed at Tuesday's meeting of the Borough Board of Education by Schools Superintendent B. Woodhull Davis.

Mr. Davis said that he could not announce the teachers involved at the present time because many of them had asked to have their names withheld until later, but he did say, "We're losing a lot of key people." He also said that while the departures are pretty well distributed through the school system, several present staff members are expected to be shifted.

The board moved to fill one of the expected vacancies by approving the appointment of Miss Sarah A. M. Witt as a first grade teacher at Nassau Street School for 1960-61. Miss Witt is now a senior at State University, where she is reported to have an outstanding record in both academic and extracurricular work.

Graham Rotner was unanimously re-elected president of the board. Re-elected vice president was Dr. Jeremiah Finch, dean of the college of Princeton University.

Students Take Over. The major part of Tuesday's two-and-a-half hour meeting of the board was taken over by the group of students from Princeton High School who were elected "board members" in a Student Administration Day program last week.

As is customary, each student had been elected to a particular board member's position, and each presented a suggestion for changes in the program or physical equipment of the high school. These suggestions were the plans on which they had been elected, and thus represented the opinions of many of the PHS students.

FIVE POPULAR WAYS TO KILL CUT FLOWERS

1. Never re-cut the stems. This takes time, and you get your hand wet. Bacteria may clog the stems but you can't see them now, can you?
 2. Never change the water. Everyone knows, with the price of water nowadays, you can save plenty by using what you have. If the water turns green, it sort of blends with the foliage, except that as the water turns green, the leaves turn brown.
 3. Keep them warm. Let this be a watch-word. Never place flowers in a cool room overnight. You might catch pneumonia. Direct sunlight is great, particularly if it streams through a double glass window. Larking that, radiators will do. There are ways to improve on this one: space heaters, sun lamps, etc. Use your creative imagination. If the flowers seem to dehydrate, it is obviously the fault of the florist, if the cloudy weather or the freeze in Florida—in reverse order.
 4. Never add cut-flower food to the water. Be resourceful: vinegar, salt or aspirin are much more dehydrating, and you have those in the kitchen.
 5. Place in shallow water. Never give flowers a fighting chance. A half-inch of water is fine. If they need more, let them absorb it out of the air.
- We are kidding of course! We mean, Allen's really want your flowers to live. That is why we start you off with fresh flowers in an enclosed cut-flower food, and insert a card with every purchase. Why don't we get acquainted real soon?

Student sponsors of a Valentine dance at Princeton learned last weekend that it isn't polite to put a price on a date—and certainly not one of 25 cents.

Although tickets to the affair at $175, the Orange Key Society indicated that for an additional 25 cents, the purchaser would be promised a date with a girl from Century College in Hackettstown. It was added that "100 dates would be sold" for the occasion, each at the 25-cent figure.

Through the University Press Club, metropolitan newspapers picked up the story and parents of Century girls promptly picked up the cudgels. "No," they chorused unanimously, and understandingly. The girls stayed in Hackettstown, and the Orange Key offered refunds and apologies all around.

had been named "president of the board," presided, and Paul Perry, a senior chosen "superintendent of schools," served as coordinator. Specific suggestions made and the resultant action taken by the Board of Education:

Leon Venier, senior, removal of stands in centerfield during baseball season; approved.

Elizabeth Wilson, senior, creation of a Board of Education banner to be awarded to the home room, maintaining the highest scholastic average; put under study.

Mardi Coyle, freshman, elimination of pigeons in high school tower; approved, if possible, and put under study.

Katherine Bassett, junior, overhauling of electric equipment on stage; already planned for this Summer.

Jack Hawkins, senior, establishment of Thanksgiving Day football game; taken under consideration.

Michael Marston, sophomore, adoption of behind-the-wheel program; already under study.

Terry Russo, senior, purchase of new uniforms for majorettes and color guard; approved.

Florence Harris, junior, installation of water fountain on or near tennis courts; approved.

Martin McGuinn, senior, establishment of behind-the-wheel driver training course; tabled for the present.

SAFETY PETITION STARTED

Circulated at University. A petition endorsing the adoption of the "Princeton Loop Plan" to ease Washington Road traffic was circulated this week to students, faculty and administrative officials of Princeton University. The petition was sponsored by the Undergraduate Council.

The "Princeton Loop Plan" would reroute Washington Road traffic the east and west sides of Princeton Township by means of a new traffic circle on the other side of Lake Carnegie. The plan would require the building of two Lee M. Bruce, chairman of the Undergraduate Council, said that the Council feels that by adding the endorsement of the university community to the long-range loop plan, the measure may be expedited. The petition was to be sent to Governor Robert B. Meyner on Wednesday.

Addressed to Gov. Meyner, the petition began "We, the undersigned students, members of the faculty, and administration and employees of Princeton University, are deeply concerned over the over-growing traffic problem presented by Washington Road." It went on to recall the recent undergraduate deaths in the past three months.

"We respectfully urge you as this State's Chief Executive to do all within your power to coordinate the efforts of the State, Mercer and Middlesex Counties, and the municipal authorities concerned in implementing plans that will offer long-range relief from this source of danger."

The petition went on to point out that local solutions such as—Continued on Page 4 better lighting, additional traffic signs, and the designation of school zones are only temporary. "We therefore," it concluded, "commend to your attention the creation of alternate traffic routes. Toward this end we endorse the objectives of the so-called 'Princeton Loop Plan.'"

Safety Meeting Scheduled. The monthly meeting of the Traffic Safety Committee, to be held next Tuesday at 2:30 in the Borough Engineering Office, 102 Witherspoon Street, will have several special representatives present for discussion of the Washington Road traffic problem.

In addition to the committee, which consists of Mayor Raymond F. Male, Magistrate Theodore T. Tamm, Police Chief Raymond Medford, Chester R. Stroup and Borough Engineer Arthur T. Brokaw, members of the student councils of Princeton High School and Princeton University will attend. Also Don D. Coyle, Borough councilman; Herbert J. Klar, of the Bureau of Traffic Safety; George E. Thomas, of the State Highway Department; and Arthur Talbot, of the Public Service Electric Company.

At a meeting held last August, the proposal was made that pedestrian crossings be controlled by traffic lights. The State Highway Department was requested to make a study and survey of the situation and the results of this study will also be presented.

Recommendations from the representatives of the State University, and other interested individuals will be thoroughly evaluated and a specific program will be formulated and recommended to the Borough Council.

TWO LOSE LICENSES

Guilt of Drunk Driving. Thomas Corcoran, 17, 35 Hamilton Avenue, and David J. Britton, 20, 25 Hamilton Avenue, were each fined $200 and $25 court costs and had their licenses revoked for two years for driving while intoxicated. Corcoran was also fined $55 and had his license revoked an additional year for reckless driving.

In other violations, Magistrate Theodore T. Tamm found Frederick W. Traeger, 18, 28 Chestnut Street, $15 for careless driving and Bradley Smith, 46, 106 Quaker Road, $10 for backing into a state highway from a private driveway. Mrs. Anna Reifeldt, 65, Cherry Hill Road, was fined $10 for jaywalking.

Brief Thought

*Do flowers grow
Beneath the snow?
ANN M. O. KNEE*

The third snowfall of the winter raised that question this week as a look at the calendar showed that spring is only a few short (2) weeks away. Less than two inches fell, leaving Princeton with a total far below normal for the season.

Would the law of averages catch up with the community in March? The Nan wouldn't say out loud, but sources usually considered reliable indicate he might be writing this winter off as one of the mild-est in many years.

A pleasant weekend is in store, reasonably chill but no more than that. No precipitation in sight.

David E. Carl, 24, 409-B Butler Avenue was fined $15 for speeding and $10 for failing to wear corrective glasses while driving.

For failing to have a driver's license, Daniel Javitch, 18, 6 Middle Dold, was fined $20, Joseph Cooke, 22, 25 Cleveland Lane, and Laurence Glass, 79 Prospect Avenue, were each fined $15 for operating a car with an expired registration.

LICENSES LOST

For Driving Violations. Arthur H. Block, 29, 214-A Halsey Street, has had his license revoked for two months under New Jersey's 60-70 Excessive Speed Program, the Division of Motor Vehicles announced this week.

Under the point system for multiple violations, a three-month revocation was imposed on Donald R. Baker, 41, He lives at 3 Chase Brook Road, Princeton Junction.

AUDIT: CHAPTER TWO

On Employment of Negroes. Last month, the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom presented the first chapter in its Community Audit series, next Wednesday night, the group will go on to examine another phase of minority life in the community. At 8:15 in the First Presbyterian Church, Mrs. C. A. Fine will present an informal report on the employment of Negroes in the Princeton area.

The report is based on 105 questionnaires which were returned from a group of 400 set to employers in the area. Mrs. Fine will compare the results of this survey with another survey of Negro employment made in 1952.

Mrs. Fine is chairman of the Intergroup Relations Committee of the Council of Community Services and the survey that she will present on Wednesday night was made by her committee. William Barnes of the Division Against Discrimination of the State of New Jersey will be on the program with Mrs. Fine.

The W.I.L.F. undertook its Audit in order to compare actual day-to-day situations in Princeton with the standards established in the United Nations' Declaration of Human Rights. In its first Audit installment last month, the group presented its findings in the fields of public accommodations and church membership.

"We found Negroes active in all phases of community life, although the actual number is 'small,'" the first report stated. Audit reporters found that Negroes were accepted in Princeton

"MARY STUART" UNVEILS

Eva Le Gallienne Topatch, The National Phoenix Theatre's production of "Mary Stuart," which played to near-capacity audiences during its three-performance run at McCarter Friday and Saturday, was somewhat disappointing considering its top names and well-nigh impeccable pedigree. The main objection was incoherent development of what should have been a superb dramatic theme. Playing the title role, Signe Hasso was hindered by an impending case of laryngitis, which made it almost impossible for her to vary her speaking voice. The result was a monotone portrayal of the Scottish queen, which verged on the neurotic, rather than bringing out the nobility of the character. Miss Hasso's interpretation seemed almost hysterical at times when a more regal attitude of calm would have been appropriate.

Perhaps part of the blame can be laid at the feet of the playwright and the adapters (Cecil Rich Schiller, and Jean S. Goldstone and John Reich), who have done little to solve the "enigma" of Mary Stuart. At best, an inexcusable historical figure, whose motives have never been adequately explained, the queen did not come alive but remained behind a curtain of vacillation and doubt. Tyrone Guthrie's direction was pitched at a loud level of declamation and a grand style of acting, not always to the play's advantage. Again, Miss Hasso suffered most, and the lack of variety in her material was evident, particularly in the over-long first act.

Elizabeth, a Real Queen. On the other hand, Eva Le Gallienne as Queen Elizabeth I made her stage character a person of flesh and blood. Richly documented by contemporaries, the well-known characteristics of Elizabeth came across the footlights with charm and ease. The conflict within the English queen concerning Mary's execution was handled extremely well, and the comedy of her contradictory orders to Sir William Davison, ably played by Gedde Smith, served to put a fine edge on the tragedy of Mary's death. Miss Le Gallienne's fine sense of timing made her a joy to watch, particularly in the court scenes, where the hypocrisy was sharpened by well-chosen moves and phrasing. The crucial meeting between Mary and Elizabeth was, however, handled less well. The stage groupings impeded the essential drama, and the scene did not crystallize the conflict as it should have.

Supporting Cast Varied. The Earl of Leicester, played by Patrick Waddington, was the stand-out among the supporting roles. The treachery and slipperiness of the Earl were developed very well, and Mr. Waddington's brief solo scene injected one of the few much needed comic-relief notes into the play. Staats Cotsworth as Lord Burleigh was sufficiently sinister, and his makeup and costuming added to his portrayal. The "elder statesman," the Earl of Shrewsbury, put forth his voice of moderation with conviction. Paul Ballantyne handled the role sympathetically.

Bruno Gerussi, as Sir Edward Mortimer, failed to carry out his characterization of the "outfit rescuer, who runs amuck at the first sign of danger. His would-be seduction of Mary was unconvincing, and his suicide seemed almost an anti-climax. The Scottish queen's faithful servant, played by Muriel Kirkland, gave the audience its most heart-rending and tender character. Her utter devotion at Mary's plight seemed all too real.

The most concise analysis of the play might be "exhausting but not moving." The audience was treated to a fine spectacle, and it was a treat in many ways to see accomplished actors go through their paces, but the sum total was far from cohesive.

Dana Breaks Three Records. According to Dana Attractions, three previous McCarter records were broken with "Mary Stuart." Over 410,000 was grossed by the three performances (two evenings and one matinee), and a total of 2600 people saw the production. In addition, more people (actors, stage crew, etc.) were involved in the play than in any other production of comparable run since "Tonight at Samarkand" which appeared here over five years ago.

MIXTURE AS BEFORE

But Sandburg Is Unique. Carl Sandburg came back to Princeton last Sunday and more than a thousand people braced the chill winds and slippery roads to go to McCarter Theatre and hear him. They were treated to the usual Sandburg mixture of commentary on current affairs, poetry reading, singing and guitar playing. If the poetry reading and singing were not outstanding, the penetrating and sage commentary more than balanced the scales.

Mr. Sandburg is 82 now, but his uniquely lucid mind and independent spirit are as stimulating. —Continued on Page 6 as ever, voicing a somber warning on the difficulties a self-satisfied United States faces in competition with an ambitious Soviet Union, he indicted the three newest mass media — movies, radio and television — for their role in dulling the creative activities of Americans.

The great men of the past, Mr. Sandburg said, had "a capacity for loneliness and a genius for creative solitude," but the constant assaults of mass media are removing this necessary loneliness and solitude from the lives of American citizens today. "We also blamed the poets of today," including myself," he said — for their silence in the face of political crises.

"The poets ain't doing so good," he declared. He cited the "cliques and clichés" among them, the cult of insecurity and the lack of efforts to "find freedom for all men." In a brief discourse on the source of genius, he read several of his own definitions of poetry. A typical one was: "Poetry is where you know how little you know and tear your hair out trying to get that little down on paper."

Rhythms Too Soothing. The poetry reading which followed the commentary was a bit too soothing to be effective. Mr. Sandburg's soft voice, rising and falling in the rhythms of the poetry, had the lulling effect of the sound of ocean waves, and it was difficult to grasp the meaning of the words. The songs, performed in his usual half-singing, half-talking way, had the same effect.

To his credit, Mr. Sandburg had to overcome not only the acoustics of a large theatre but also the sound of scenery being shifted in the background. This was probably the equipment used the previous night for "Mary Stuart," but it certainly was a disadvantageous time for it to be moved out. Mr. Sandburg politely ignored the noises until the end, but finally said, "And now I'll take my guitar and see if I can compete with the accompaniment." It is indeed unfortunate the public appearance of such a great man had to be marred in this manner.

TRYOUTS TO BE HELD

For Intimate Production. Actors, dancers and singers may try out Sunday and Monday for parts in the Theatre Intimate production of W. H. Auden's "Age of Anxiety" which will be given on three weekends in April. Tryouts will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. nights at Murray Theater. Dance tryouts will be held on Sunday night only. Actors need not have trained singing voices to handle the jazz score for "The Age of Anxiety" because songs will be presented in the half-singing, half-talking manner of Rex Harrison in "My Fair Lady."

The score has been written by Norman Spinrad, Canadian composer whose works have been per-

Snow in Florida

A headline that always makes news gets a new twist this week as William H. Snow, veteran of numerous dramatic productions here, drew rave notices for his performance in Sarasota, Fla.

Cast in the lead of the irascible Broadway comedy, "Dixie to Me Only," Mr. Snow was credited with making the part of a perpetual inebricate "more hilarious than most actors could, largely because of a generous gift of grimace, timing and wayward personality. Billed by one critic as "Sarasota's favorite comedian," Mr. Snow is cited for "showing his large reputation for zestful acting." For a great many people in this town, the reviewer declares, "nothing Bill Snow does is funny."

Mr. Snow's Princeton address is 292 Edgerstoun Road. In Florida, he is a member of the Sarasota Flyers.

formed by George Shearing and "Fats" Waller. In addition to the jazz combo required to play Mr. Symonds' music, "Age of Anxiety" will use films and a full choir.

John Becker will direct, Joseph Fitchett will serve as associate director and Deodrich as choreographer. The production will have a Princeton premiere prior to off-Broadway presentation in New York.

MOLIERE COMING

"Le Misanthrope Planned. A new production by the Theatre du Vieux Columbiere of Moliere's "Le Misanthrope" will be given in McCarter Theater, in French, on Friday, March 11. This is the production which was mounted at the Drive Arts Festival and was the final drama event at the World's Fair in Brussels. It is now under the official sponsorship of the French government.

The production has been staged in stylized modern dress by Bernini Dieran of the Comedie Francaise and its 11-member cast stars Jacques Duménil as Alceste, Madeleine Delavallée as Celine and Jacques Maréchal as Oronte. Original gowns for the new production have been designed by Pierre Cardin, Paris couturier.

"Le Misanthrope" in its new staging has received almost unequivocal praise from French critics — "the performance is ravishing" . . . "how it lives and vibrates!" . . . "it was the height of satisfaction."

Tickets are on sale at the Princeton University Store. There will be a 30 percent discount for students and University personnel.

"PICCOLO TEATRO" HERE

All-Italian Company to Play. The renowned Piccolo Teatro di Milano, which opened in New York this week, will appear in McCarter Theater on Thursday, March 10, under the auspices of Dana Attractions. It will be the only New Jersey appearance of the celebrated theatrical troupe.

"The Servant of Two Masters," which will be performed by members of the Teatro, is an 18th century classic in the tradition of the commedia dell'arte — literally, "comedy performed by professionals." The form makes as much use of pantomime and music as it does of language and a knowledge of Italian is not essential to enjoyment of the production.

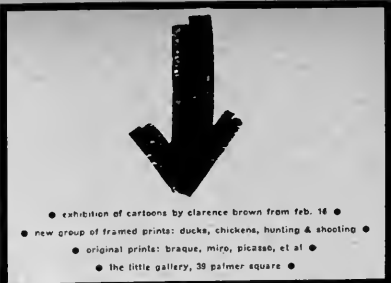

Plays in the "commedia dell'arte" repertoire usually include such stock figures as lovers, a comic servant (Harlequin being the most famous of these), girls masquerading as men, and so on. All the actors except the lovers wear masks and the Piccolo Teatro observes this classic tradition. Tickets for the production are on sale at the University Store.

A ROOM OR A HOUSE?
Decorator Will Do Either.
"When I decorate a room, I feel as though it were my own and I work so closely with a client that sometimes the client comes to feel that our tastes are identical!"

The words are those of young Sander Eisenberg who has set up shop as a decorator-in-depth, so to speak. It is her policy to confer with a client in great detail and to "live" with a room or a house until it's just the way she — and the client — think it ought to be.

Mrs. Eisenberg starts out with your budget and tries to show how the budget should be spent (plenty on pieces with movable parts, less on things the housewife can do herself such as drapes).

"I never say 'You can't do this or that,'" she says. "I merely show you that if you want one thing badly, you may have to change your mind about something else."

She is particularly concerned with people who are moving into new houses, and she offers her services as a consultant so that new home-owners will not make irrevocable mistakes in choosing such things as colored bathroom tile, kitchen formica and so on.

You may retain Mrs. Eisenberg as a consultant, in this manner, and then go ahead on your own. Or, you can ask her to work out a whole room or an entire house for you, the only limit being your budget.

She will make special trips to New York to shop just for you (she has, of course, the usual decorator's access to show-rooms which are not open to the public) and she will be sympathetic

Maui Miss Mouse

This pleasant, prim little nurse-maid not only holds the bag, she is the bag. Her destiny in life is to contain a small pair of pajamas and she does so unobtrusively and with utter competence.

The mouse bag, at Stuff 'n Nonsense, consists of a grey plush mouse head and paws. The bag is a pink or blue pin-check gingham dress, demurely collared with white and with a bow at the back. With a ruff. The dress zips down the back and that's where you put your pajamas.

If the pajamas are bulky enough to provide a substantial stuffing, as in winter, Miss Mouse would make a pleasant, if comforting, companion to take to bed at nap or night time. During the day, she is a decorative stuffed toy.

If you call her at 10 a.m. to say that the harlequin drapes just won't DO.

Mrs. Eisenberg, who has been decorating for the past two years in Princeton, may be reached at WA 4-5655.

And How Old Are You? Stuff 'n Nonsense received a new shipment of Child Guidance toys the other day and when we looked them over, we found that all of them are solemnly marked with the age-group for which the toy is designed.

In order to play with the Snaap-Natch beads, for example, you have to be one and one-half years of age, but no older than three. "Learning Numbers" requires a minimum age of three and a maximum age of six, although some of the nicest people we know are a great deal older than six and still have not learned all about numbers.

Well, anyway, these are very good toys, made of flexible plastic, like a mixing bowl. The beads are square, cone-shaped or round and they snap together and apart like a necklace. "Junior Builder" has screws, girders, bolts and wheels—18 pieces in all—which you assemble according to whim. "See-Saw-A-Ball" is an arrangement of four parallel planes, one above the other. There is a marble which you roll from plane to plane by tilting each level, using a control knob behind the entire contraption. The age level for this is about 24-45.

Children under nine, it says on the box, can use a new sewing-card set which is quite different from the usual run-of-the-stitch set. It has applique parts which you punch out and sew over the painted picture. Colors are primary, forms are stylized and without too much detail.

There's a snowman, a whale, Red Riding Hood with a pony tail, an elephant and a big shank of bright wool yarn. You can sew these things without committing yourself, because a pull of the yarn will take them all apart again.

Schmid's West German card games include some $1 sets based on wild flowers, native birds or strange animals. That's the one for us. There's a proboscis monkey, a Tarsier and a porcupine fish. Miss Britcher, the Stuff 'n Nonsense lady, estimates that persons between nine and a half and sixteen and three-quarters years will enjoy these games.

AS TIME RUNS OUT: Fred Astaire explains a scientific device to Anthony Perkins as Gregory Peck looks on in "On the Beach." There will be featured at the Playhouse through Tuesday. The Stanley Kramer production deals with a community doomed by atomic radiation following a nuclear war which has destroyed the rest of the world.

News Of The Theatres

THE PLAYHOUSE
On the Beach (February 17-23) is a significant picture dealing with one of our important race problems—the survival of the human race. Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Fred Astaire and even oil-shuffle-gaited, scarp-scratching Anthony Perkins behave more like human beings than movie stars, and Stanley Kramer's production is professional and gripping, far more so than the journalistic novel from which it is adapted.

The story takes place in 1964, when the world, with the exception of Melbourne, Australia, has been devastated of human life by the explosion of a number of nuclear bombs. Peck is the skipper of an American submarine whose crew survived because they were submerged at the time of the catastrophe. Soon after the sub docks at Melbourne it becomes known that all those still living are doomed by radioactive fallout. The human relationships which develop among the principals in this situation are put forth powerfully and thoughtfully, and Kramer's direction is magnificent. There are occasional lapses in Perkins' Australian accent and there are some unfortunate scenes—notably the one in which Astaire, as a bitter scientist, philosophizes in pacifist clichés which are unnecessary and weaken the film's similar but more artfully presented message—but in its total effect this is among Hollywood's most serious and intelligent works. Recommended.

Never So Few (February 24-March 1) is an incredible confession that salvages what tiny interest it holds from the press even in the cast of Frank Sinatra, who does what he can with Millicent Kaufman's innate screenplay. Others in the cast are Gina Lollobrigida, Peter Lawford, Steve McQueen, Richard Johnson, Paul Henreid and Brian Donlevy. The film is adapted from the novel by Tom T. Chatterline.

Sinatra plays an American officer during World War II who, so far as we could tell, single-handedly whipped the Japanese in the Burmese campaign, defying the warlords and his superior officers with equal clan. During his spare time, which seemingly includes every other hundred feet of film, he heads for metropolitan bistros, where, with the quick-breathing assistance of Miss Lollobrigida, he proves the efficacy of Yankee charm. On one of his visits to the front he uncovers a subversive plot by some of his supposed Chinese allies and thus makes the world safe for democracy and Peter Lawford. The picture includes no singing by Sinatra, which is too bad.

THE GARDEN
Broth of a Boy (February 17-20) is an Irish Charming featuring Barry Fitzgerald, Tony Randall and the Abbey Players of Dublin. Fitzgerald is a delight as a 110-year-old Gaelic rogue who lands in court for assault while the town is making plans to honor him as the oldest man in the world, and Randall is capable, as usual, in the role of the sports-car-driving TV executive whose plans for promoting Fitzgerald are interrupted by his dismissal from the network for oversteering his expense-account tour of Ireland. The Fitzgerald magic is an elusive quality, only rarely employed to best advantage in American films. "Broth of a Boy," however, with its good-natured direction and absurdly insignificant plot, is obviously tailored to his peculiar talents and the result is light, warmhearted entertainment. Recommended.

Bad Day at Black Rock (February 22), released in 1956, is another one of those "High Noon"-type psychological Westerns where cows are Freudian symbols and dancehall girls have Electra complexes. The stars are Spencer Tracy, Robert Ryan, Anne Francis, Dean Jagger and Walter Brennan, and the war they talk about is World War II, not about the Civil one. Tracy is a well-meaning gentleman who comes to the small town of Black Rock and stumbles upon a murder which the townspeople have committed and are trying to conceal. The story is nicely handled as a study of the effects of guilt on an entire town, and all the principals give lust portrayals. The film is in CinemaScope and color. Recommended.

The Young Have No Time (February 23-27) evinces that teenagers in Denmark worry about and discuss sex just about the same as they do in the United States, except for the fact they discuss it in Danish. An interesting, though somewhat overlong study of youthful problems, the film stars Ghita Nørby, Anne Werner Thomsen and Else Højgaard.

The Misses Nørby and Thomsen are school-chums and Miss Thomsen, an unhappy, experimental type, seems likely to lead Miss Nørby astray. When Miss Nørby resists her persuasions, Miss Thomsen tries to create a school scandal around her. Things work out happily when Miss Nørby falls in love with a trumpet-playing student who proves his sincerity by foregoing a chance to play with a touring band to remain with her. The Danish dialogue is translated in subtitles.

hotels, treated by Princeton physicians, welcome in Princeton churches, but not served in white barber-shops and beauty parlors. About 10 percent of the Princeton population is Negro.

WATCH YOUR DOG!

That Ring Suspected. A warning to all Princeton residents to keep careful watch over their dogs and cats was issued this week by the Princeton Small Animal Rescue League. Mrs. Allen W. Stephens, league president, said that so many pets have disappeared recently that members of the league suspect the existence of an organized ring of thieves.

Such theft rings have been discovered in the past in various communities in the country, Mrs. Stephens said. Their usual method of procedure is to drive through a community in a truck, pick up any animals which are wandering loose, and then dispose of them elsewhere.

Purebred dogs, Mrs. Stephens explained, are often sold to disreputable breeders, who breed them and then issue false papers for the puppies. Mongrels often suffer a worse fate, as they are sold to laboratories. In addition, in the hunting season dogs which might be useful are stolen by hunters and then abandoned miles from home, minus identification if the animals prove poor hunters.

Dogs which have disappeared in Princeton this year include a Bassett hound belonging to Mrs. Alfred W. Gardner of 226 Constitution Drive; a Boxer belonging to Mrs. Morris Mather, Jr., of 72 Adams Drive and a Boston Bull belonging to Mrs. Amos Eno of Quaker Road. Also vanished is a Seal Point Siamese cat which belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Menand, Jr., of 140 Hodge Road.

Protective Measure. The best protection against having an animal stolen, Mrs. Stephens said, is to keep a close watch on him and to be sure that he is not left outside when the family isn't home.

If your pet should disappear, notify the Borough and Township Police at once and call Mrs. A.C.

Graves, executive secretary of the Small Animal Rescue League, at Walnut 7-8122. Mrs. Graves keeps a record of all stray animals which are picked up as well as of those which are lost.

POLO CLINIC SCHEDULED

At Princeton Hospital, Princeton Hospital has announced that its monthly polo clinic will be held Tuesday from 4 to 5 in the Outpatient Department.

Parents should take notice that most schools require that the full series of polo shots be administered before a child may enter school. It is important, therefore, to begin the series now so that all three shots can be completed by Fall.

BENEFIT DINNER PLANNED

By Sportsmen's Club. Members of the Princeton Italian-American Sportsmen's Club will give a chicken dinner next Saturday at 6 p.m. at the club's headquarters on Terhune Road. Anthony Barolino will be chairman of the event.

The dinner has been planned as a benefit for the widow and six children of Felix Lieggi, club member who was killed in an automobile accident last fall. Tickets are $2.75. They are available at The Princeton Garden Center, in the Shopping Center, and at Liggett's Drug Store. Those who wish to make contributions may send them to the Sportsmen's Club.

COMMITTEE CHOSEN

For St. Paul's Play, "A Night with St. Patrick," forthcoming production of the St. Paul's Parent Teachers Association, will be given under the guidance of Mrs. R. F. Johnson and Mrs. Gottfried Outbrodt, general co-chairmen. The play will be presented March 16 and 17.

Committee chairmen will be Mrs. Rudolph F. Tesen and Mrs. James Boccanfuso, publicity; Mrs. John F. McCarthy, Jr., patron; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marcellous, booster chairman; Mr. and Mrs. John Brabson, tickets; Mrs. Lawrence Dupraz and Mrs. James Cramer, program chairmen; Joseph E. During 1969, as in previous years, money donated through the Town Topics Christmas Fund and administered by the Family Service Agency was used to provide help to children at Christmas

The Family Service Guidance Center was discontinued in 1969, Unique but Unbelievable.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

I wonder if others had the same reaction to the figures reported in Town Topics on the number of votes cast in the recent School Board elections.

It is true that the elections in both communities were uncontested. However, here in the "Athens of America" where we live among all C. Price's "steagheads", only 440 out of over 12,000 registered voters, voted on the spending of many thousands of dollars of money.

Carlos Baker calls Princeton "A community unique in our time." In this case, one would hope so.

LORITA SCHRANK
(Mrs. Glen E. Schrank)

Editor's Note: While Mrs. Schrank's position is well taken, it should be pointed out that there are there are approximately 9800 registered voters in Princeton, not 12,000.

Realists and Optimists Needed

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

The movie "On the Beach" (Editor's Note: at the Playhouse Fr. 17-23) depicts the possibility that the radioactivity created by the nuclear explosions of a third world war could end all human life. The Pentagon has ordered its employees not to see this film. Others simply deplore its pessimism and borrow their beads deeper in the sand.

But groups such as the Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and the United World Federalists, which face the grim possibilities of a third world war, and believe that something can be done about it, are not pessimists. Rather they are realists and optimists. Realists to face the military facts of life, and optimists to believe that what must be done (to preserve the human race, can be done.

Some say that "Sane and 'OWF'" seek the impossible. They may be right, but such skepticism overlooks the fact that nothing is permanent except change. Premier Khrushchev is certainly a dictator, but much less a tyrant than was Stalin.

Furthermore, Mikoyan, who may succeed Khrushchev, appears less intransigent than his boss. Three years ago, who would have believed in an exchange of Khrushchev-Eisenhower visits, or that the two nations would negotiate seriously to end nuclear weapon tests?

It is true that the tragedy may occur that these negotiations break down over the minor issue of whether or not very small, very deep underground atomic tests are detectable and/or permissible. If so, it will be a victory for the Pentagon and the Atomic Energy Commission, and the rate of increase in the strontium 90 content in the bones of every human (and especially the very young) will accelerate. On the other hand, it is also true that most other obstacles to these negotiations have been solved.

To cite another example, who would have believed a few years ago that the President of the United States would advocate removal of the Connelly reservation to U.S. accession to the World Court; or that the Vice President would propose that future treaties to which the United States is to party contain clauses for the mutual arbitration of disputes under such treaties to the World Court, whose decisions would be binding?

The nuclear test ban negotiations, and the efforts of the Administration to achieve an effective World Court, do not just happen. They occur largely because of the efforts of small but active organizations such as "Sane" and "OWF". Nor will a United Nations with powers limited but adequate to prevent future international wars, and with a democratic system of representation for the proper exercise of such powers, just happen.

I urge Princetonians to see "On the Beach." Then, if you care whether or not humanity has a future, I urge you to involve yourself in international as well as locally oriented issues. Unless there are some important successes on the world scale, the finest efforts of our most laudable community causes will in the long run have little meaning.

Fluoridation Is Questionable.

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

There is more than meets the eye in the subject of fluoridation. A plausible case can be made in favor of it only if one ignores a great deal of available information. Fluoridation has become a highly controversial subject all across the United States.

In August, 1959, the Medical-Dental Ad Hoc Committee on Evaluation of Fluoridation, published the proceedings of its third medical conference. In the evaluation of Fluoridation, concluding that the fluoridation of public water supplies poses serious threats to the health of the entire population.

More than 1500 of the nation's leading physicians, dentists, and scientists sponsor the Medical-Dental Ad Hoc Committee which was created to study fluoridation. Allen A. London, Doctor of Dental Science, is National Secretary of the Committee, whose address is Old Borton Road, Borton, New Jersey. Jonathan Forman, a medical doctor in Columbus, Ohio, is National Chairman.

The Medical-Dental Ad Hoc Committee published, in 1957, this Statement on Fluoridation. "We, the undersigned are opposed to the fluoridation of public water supplies. As members of the medical, dental, and related public health professions, we are as concerned as anyone over the prevalence of tooth decay. We are anxious that it be prevented; but each of us, for some or all of the reasons set forth here and discussed more fully in the appended memorandum, believes that fluoridation of public water supplies is not a proper means of attempting such prevention.

"1. Positive proofs of the safety of fluoridation are required. None has been offered.

"2. The so-called therapeutic concentration of fluoride, arbitrarily established as 1 ppm, in drinking water, is in the toxic range.

"3. Dental fluorosis (ugly discoloration of teeth), the first obvious symptom of chronic fluoride toxicity in children, is an inevitable result of fluoridation. The evidence reveals that large numbers of the population may be afflicted, and with varying degrees of damage.

"4. The determination of whether damage resulting from dental fluorosis is 'objectionable' is a matter for the person whose teeth are affected, and not for the arbitrary assertion of public officials.

"5. The conceivable role of fluoride as an insidious factor in chronic disease has been evaded by the proponents. A substantial amount of evidence indicates such a possibility. Properly planned long term studies are required to determine the possible comprehensive association of fluoride with chronic disease.

"6. Fluoridation imposes an extraordinary risk on certain individuals who by reason of occupation, environmental circumstances, state of health, dietary habits, etc., are already exposed to a relatively high intake of fluoride.

"7. Fluoridation is compulsory mass medication without precedent. Mass therapy cannot ignore the possibility of 'mass' side reactions.

"8. The function of a public water supply is to provide safe water for everybody, not to serve as a vehicle for drugs.

"9. The role and quantity of fluoride in dental caries reduction is a matter of active controversy; whatever the role, fluoride is less hazardous and more efficient ways of obtaining such benefits as fluoride may offer than by putting it into the public water supply."

BROPHY'S

FINE SHOES

Palmer Square

The leading organizations of the dental profession as well as groups within the American Medical Association advocate fluoridation of the water supply in local communities. This advocacy dates from some time back before there had been an opportunity to study the problem and to realize that a case for fluoridation would stand up cannot be made.

In fact, the weight of the evidence is against it. In recent years the efforts of these organizations have been chiefly of the face-saving variety and largely have ignored the rapidly mounting body of evidence against the idea of fluoridation.

MARK M. JONES
159 Library Place,

Editor's Note: Dr. John G. Carr, secretary of the New Jersey State Dental Society, said that the Medical-Dental Ad Hoc Committee Evaluation of Fluoridation cited in Mr. Jones' letter, has "no affiliation with the New Jersey State Dental Society." Richard I. Nevins, executive officer of the Medical Society of New Jersey, said the Medical Society "has no official cognizance of such a committee."

COLLECTORS' ITEMS: Young Mike Skillman, left, 52 Harriet Drive, and John Keisall, 256 Varally Avenue, shown here with Governor Meyner, collected more bottles than anyone else in the recent U.S. Olympic Fund drive. Empty soft-drink bottles turned in by Princeton children have brought the Olympic fund over $100 in the drive launched by Irwin Weiss, director of physical education at the Borough schools and chairman of the state AAU Olympic Fund Drive. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Local 130, of Princeton, helped with the bottle collection. Mike collected bottles worth $24.97 and John collected more than $17 worth. Other winners, also presented with Olympic certificates, are Walker Rozier, 112 Leigh Avenue; Stanley Donald, Jr., 284 Hamilton Avenue; Thomas Rose, 300 Hamilton Avenue; John Ballentine, 82 Library Place; Alex Johnson, 19 Linden Lane and Anthony Mancini, 28 Pine Street. THREE TO ONE AGAINST KEEPING SCHOOL OPEN ALL YEAR: Robin Pittendrigh (left), Priscilla Rodgers (right) and Connie York, all students at Princeton High School, are opposed to keeping the high school open 12 months a year. The lone dissenter, Jerry Gidar, would be willing to go to school the year round, providing the school make two major concessions. For theirs and other opinions, see below. (Staff Photo.)

Question of the Week

Question: There has been increased agitation to keep the nation's schools open 12 months a year, proponents saying that to let our educational plants lie idle three months a year is a terrible waste. Do you think the public schools in Princeton should be kept open the year round?

Where asked: Public Library.

Kael H. Hlinger, Frick Chemical Laboratory, chemist: I think from the standpoint of utilizing the school capacity that exists it probably is a good idea to have the schools open all year. But there is a question in my mind if this could be done and still keep the standards on the level which they are now without increasing the personnel and the faculty. I'm afraid we would be sacrificing quality of instruction at the expense of an increased quantity of teaching. And it is decidedly the quality of the teaching that is the important thing.

Mrs. Paul Ashton, 60 Harriet Drive, housewife: I can see how it could be done by putting the school year on a semester plan and making a child attend three out of four semesters a year. Just who would make the decision as to which semester a child would miss, would have to be worked out between the school and the parents. Whether it would be a good plan for Princeton remains to be seen. We're not overcrowded and such a program would be of more importance to a crowded community. I don't see any real need for it here.

Benjamin F. McMahon, 2901 Princeton Pike, Lawrenceville management consultant: I think it might be useful to use the school plants during summer months for noncurricular, recreational, or some type of vocational purposes, but, on the other hand, I still favor the old arrangement for the following reasons: One — the teachers do need the summer vacation time to conduct research in order to prepare themselves adequately to teach the remaining nine months of the year. Two — the time is needed to maintain, repair and refurbish the school plant.

Three — if we were to keep the school open all year, it would present a serious problem to the parents in that they could no longer depend on a regular school shutdown to plan vacations for their children and themselves. And finally, it is less, in my opinion, a matter of inadequate utilization of present school plants, and more a matter of greater responsibility of the local public and federal government to provide additional schooling facilities.

Mrs. Mildred Goldberger, 80 Murray Place, housewife: I would think with the discount index as high as it is in Princeton during the summer, it would be very hard for anybody to learn anything then.

David Mink, 13, 321 Walnut Lane, 8th grader at Valley Road School: No, I don't. If they had school going on all the time, you'd get so tired of school, you just might not care anymore. You'd be tired all the time.

Mrs. DeWitt G. Jones, 51 Stanworth Lane, housewife: I believe in the three-month vacation because the standard of salaries for teachers are such that teachers need the extra three months to supplement their incomes. I can say, however, that it would be good for the children not to have such long vacations.

Ronald Berman, 12 Nassau Street, attorney: No, at least not in the lower grades. I think the children have enough regimentation over nine-month period. They should have a few months for imaginative play recreation and the responsibility of determining what to do with their own time. I think high school students, however, could use 12 months of schooling a year.

Mrs. Ronald Harn, 48 Moore Street, housewife: I think there might be a lot of resentment at first, but it might be a good idea. There is so much specialization now that it takes longer than ever to complete one's education. If school were open all year, a child could probably finish grammar school in six years and high school in three. This means that a doctor, or anyone who has to take post-graduate study, would be able to finish his academic preparation that much sooner. It should probably be introduced first in the high school and then worked downward. Those who don't want to participate should not be forced to until the system is in full swing.

Eric W. Monde, 255 Harrison Street, retired maintenance man for the University: I think the schools should be kept open longer than they are. I came from Germany and when I went to school all we had off during summer was four weeks. I may be called old-fashioned, but I really think kids in this country could go to school longer than they do; they aren't occupied enough during the year.

Mrs. Richard Hanford, Princeton Road, Plainsboro, housewife: I think it would seem practical for the plant to be used the year round and I feel it could be worked out. It certainly would save money. The family unit usually has two children attending school and it would have to be worked out in such a way that they would both be off at the same time. Once you've done something one way for so many years, it's hard to change.

BUT HE WOULDN'T SAY HELLO: Alvin, pet crow of the W. P. Reynolds family of Kingston, was happy to pose with feast of nuts spread out for him by Mrs. Reynolds but refused to demonstrate his speaking talents. Mrs. Reynolds reports he can say "hello" inaudibly. (Staff Photo.)

Topics Of The Town

CROW IS PERFECT PET

According to Reynolds Family, Others may prefer dogs, cats or parakeets, but as far as the W. P. Reynolds family is concerned, the best pet of all is a crow. "It's more fun than any pet we've ever had, and we've had all kinds," declared Mrs. Reynolds.

Their pet crow, Alvin, seems well aware of the family's feelings for him, too, for he struts around in front of their antique shop on Ridge Road, Kingston, with all the pride usually credited to a peacock. He haughtily ignores the family dog and cat, and crows, innocently and indignantly at visitors, but comes quickly and with complete confidence when Mrs. Reynolds calls him.

"People won't believe that a crow can be affectionate, but Alvin really is," Mrs. Reynolds said. He proved it, too, by perching happily on the fence near the shop and allowing her to stroke his back, while he looked very pleased with his lot in life. He is really also friendly with visitors, and his loud crows at their arrival, Mrs. Reynolds explained, are only the result of his determination to be a watch dog.

"Like all crows, Alvin is very intelligent and a great imitator," she said. "He heard the dog bark whenever someone came, so he decided he should give a warning signal, too. He also imitates whatever someone came, so he decided he should give a warning signal, too. He also imitates whatever someone came, so he decided he should give a warning signal, too."

Party Manners, Too. Alvin showed a fine crowd-like sense of party manners last Summer, Mrs. Reynolds reported, when the family had a picnic outdoors. Everybody was drinking out of paper cups, and Alvin watched with fascination. When Mrs. Reynolds dropped a cup on the ground, Alvin picked it up quickly and took it over in the swimming pool. He then drank from it and then carrying them around, pleased as punch."

Party Manners, Too. Alvin showed a fine crowd-like sense of party manners last Summer, Mrs. Reynolds reported, when the family had a picnic outdoors. Everybody was drinking out of paper cups, and Alvin watched with fascination. When Mrs. Reynolds dropped a cup on the ground, Alvin picked it up quickly and took it over in the swimming pool. He then drank from it and then carrying them around, pleased as punch."

"Alvin loves water, anyway," Mrs. Reynolds said. "I never realized that crows were such clean birds. He takes a bath four or five times a day, at least. And how he loves the snow! He will dive right into it, roll around and around, and then eat some. It's so much happier to see the snow come than we are!"

Pet crows are known to talk occasionally, and Mrs. Reynolds said that Alvin was no exception. His vocabulary, however, is limited to just one word, "hello," and he only says that when he feels like it. He didn't feel like it while being interviewed.

"He really does say it often, though," Mrs. Reynolds said. "And I'm sure that he knows what it means, because he says it with such a flourish. He always bows his head away down, and then says a long 'hellooo' so grandly, just as if he were appearing on a stage."

One of Three, Alvin is one of three crows which the Reynolds' son, Martin, 15, found last Spring in the woods across the street from their home. After prolonged consultation with the veterinarians, the Reynolds family managed to bring all three to maturity. While not quite as large as crows which mature out of captivity, they seemed healthy and normal, the only noticeable difference between them and other crows being the fact that their wings were clipped.

Despite appearances, however, one of the three crows — the smallest and gentlest, whose name was Pet — was not strong and, just before Christmas, he became ill and died. A second, Jim, disappeared two weeks ago. The Reynolds aren't sure whether he was stolen or just wandered away, but they have just about given up hope of getting him back.

The entire family is sad about the loss of these two, and now are hoping to locate more crows this Spring. "It really seems strange not to have all three of them around," Mrs. Reynolds said. "And I think Alvin is very lonely, especially since Jim disappeared. We're just hoping that Martin can find some more!"

RESIDENTS LECTURE

At Littlebrook School, Residents of Princeton are currently sharing their professional, travel or hobby experiences with students at Littlebrook School under a new program inaugurated this year. This is the first joint effort of the school and its PTA to organize available Princetonians for this purpose.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Simon Marston of the Littlebrook - Riverside PTA, has resulted in the creation of a file of 40 Princeton residents who are willing to lecture to the students. Mrs. Marston said that the school is eager to add more names to the list and asked that any Princetonians interested in participating call Charles W. LeMontagne, principal, at the Littlebrook School.

Among those who have already spoken at Littlebrook are the following nine residents, whose subjects ranged from poetry and sonnets to surgery and color.

James Benth of 282 Western Way discussed his experiences in Greenland and showed slides of native life and commercial flying installations there. Color slides of life in South America were shown by Mrs. Roland T. Ely of 144 Constitution Drive. Dr. Laurence B. Holland of 78 Deer Path, a member of the faculty at Princeton University, discussed literary technique and helped to organize a literature reading unit.

PRINCETON BACKS SHOW

March Opening Scheduled. "Off Broadway" has come to mean for many an actor, producer and director a setting for a theatrical Horatio Alger story where the remuneration may be low but the eventual return in prestige and opportunities may be enormous.

Invading the vigorous atmosphere around Second Avenue in New York is a group of Princetonians, all graduates within the past ten years. All of them have been seen or heard from on the stages of Murray Theatre or McCarter.

Heading the producing team, the man with the most brains and his share of the worries, is Stuart Duncan, Princeton resident, former Community Players president, erstwhile actor, and in "real life" director of advertising and sales for Lea and Perrins. Associated with him are David Sawyer, who successfully guided the fortunes of the University Players for two seasons "a career theatre man," and Hilary Lipitz, associated with a New York advertising firm.

Catalyst for this combination, which includes Philip Minor, their director, and Hugh Hardy, set designer, is "Under the Sycamore Tree," a play by Sam Spewack, who with his wife, Belle, has been responsible for much that has been good on Broadway over a decade or two, notably "Boy Meets Girl," "Kiss Me Kate," "My Three Angels." "Under the Sycamore Tree," described as a "strikingly effective satire applicable to any time," has had four productions abroad but none in this country. It will open at The Cricket Theatre March 7.

Acts on Stage. Philip Minor, known both as actor and director with the University Players and Theatre Intime, is not new to an Off-Broadway venture. He has played at the Circle in the Square and is a manager of the Sheridan Square Playhouse, currently overflowing with the remarkably rewarding nostalgia of "Tell it to Jane."

He says of the play that Mr. Spewack does not consider this a star vehicle and that it was entirely fortuitous that the London production of "Under the Sycamore Tree" happened to shoot actor Alex Guinness into the theatrical firmament. The play depicts the Utopian existence of an elite colony until they undertake to emulate human beings. Mr. Duncan cites various production problems, one of casting. For the ants during the course of the show gradually lose their antlike qualities as they take on those of human beings. There is no possibility, however, Mr. Duncan says, that the stage of The Cricket will be strewn with shed antennae.

Responsible for creating a "sort of rolling ant hill" on the rather small stage at The Cricket is PRODUCER: Stuart Duncan is backing new play set for March off-Broadway opening.

Hugh Hardy who after only three years away from the Princeton Graduate School, and one from the Army can read his name as Assistant Designer to Jo Melziner on two current hits, "Sweet Bird of Youth" and "Cypsy." While at Princeton Mr. Hardy's sets contributed to productions by every campus theatrical group as well as the Community Players.

In the general neighborhood of The Phoenix with its own Princeton connections, The Cricket seats only 150 customers at each performance. For the uninitiated, who find themselves multiplying potential audience times price of tickets minus cost of production, Mr. Duncan has this to say:

An "Off-Broadway" theatre to be so designated must seat less than 200 people by ruling of Actor's Equity and the unions. Although top prices are far below those of Broadway theatres, so are production costs. Off-Broadway producers may pay salaries much lower than the ordinary minimum, and end up by working their cast twice as hard. Although there are no Monday night performances, almost all Off-Broadway theatres play Tuesday through Sunday evenings. Sunday often includes a late afternoon or early evening show as well. The same holds on Saturdays, so that theatre goers can indulge in a "London-type" evening of theatre at 6 and late dinner, or dinner first and theater curtain as late as 10:30.

Mr. Duncan announced this week that the completed cast will include two more Princetonians, Thomas Barber and James Harder will appear among the ants at The Cricket.

A FLAG FOR EVERY HOME

Is Goal of American Legion. Princeton Post 75 of the American Legion is joining in a nationwide campaign to further the display of the American flag on patriotic days. "We hope," said Post commander Eric H. Jungberg, "that before Memorial Day, every family in Princeton will have an American Flag in good condition and plan to display it." The adoption of the new 50-star flag has given special emphasis to this year's flag campaign. Mr. Jungberg pointed out, but it is still proper to display the 48- or 49-star Old Glory as long as it is in good condition. The United States flag, he noted, is never obsolete.

The Flag Education Program of Post 75 is under the direction of Eugene E. Pierre, assisted by D. Donald Richards. Flags may be purchased through the post, which is maintaining that operation as a public service.

Will Head United Fund, Fred M. Blancher was elected president of the United Community Fund at the 1959 Campaign Achievement dinner held at the YM-YWCA last week. The final sum raised under the recent campaign was $204,612 and retiring president Ralph Mason hailed this the most outstanding achievement in the 22-year history of the fund.

John M. Reeder, Campaign Chairman, said that, compared to the national average increase of 6 percent, the Princeton Fund achieved 17 percent over the 1958 campaign.

"Our community not only supported a good campaign," Mr. Reeder said, "but placed Princeton among the outstanding communities in the national campaign which the American public contributed $25,000,000."

No Union at This Time

The Princeton Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Princeton United Community Fund have issued a statement announcing their decision to continue separate fund-raising efforts.

The two groups studied the possibility of consolidating and decided according to the statement, that "each organization serves a purpose that is particularly peculiar to the contributing public... the provisions of the respective organizations' charters do not lend themselves to a consolidation of fund raising efforts at this time."

A study of the question will continue, but both organizations feel that it would be to the greater advantage of Princeton area residents to have fund-raising campaigns carried on separately.

It's New To Us

A South African firm has made some splendid little toy soldiers about an inch and a half high, dresses as Hessian Fusiliers, a Confederate POW team, a Union cavalry regiment, a Revolutionary War stockade defense battalion, and so on. Incidentally, those Swappies whose heads and bodies interchange, will soon be available in the War of the Roses. Well, you're already aware the cowboys and Indians, haven't you? This is the inevitable next step.

Luxury for Spring. Robert Powell Johns has sent part of his boutique collection to 18th Century Boutique, on State Road, for the edification of Princeton shoppers in search of a spring wardrobe.

There is a willow green skirt in light-weight wool with a double-breasted effect achieved by two ranks of buttons below the waistband. (The willow green might give way to salmon, maize, pale blue or sand, all of which are available.)

To go with this skirt, there is a pure silk shirt in the same color and a buttonless cashmere cardigan. The sand-colored skirt is checked, and other skirts are designed without the buttons.

A simpler effect for spring and summer could be achieved with a two-piece striped cotton skirt, sleeveless, with matching straight skirt and a straight, forthright seersucker (two line it's almost like pima) striped with loden or brown and fashioned with a slight notch in the brief sleeves; skirt pockets and a leather and fabric belt.

Fine cotton has been used again for some printed skirts in shades of purple, lime or russet. They would go with any of those classic linen Bermudas, just waiting for a fine sunny day.

A silk flower garden, bright as a field of Oriental poppies, grows on the white background of a simple sundress. Gathered skirt and shoestring straps keep the dress simple for the most dazzling collection of anemones, tulips and asters you ever saw.

18th Century likes the look of linen in navy, light blue or melon with half-inch inserts of white linen down each side of the front, shoulder to hem. The shop now does alterations, by the way.

Upstairs at 18th Century, the flower girls are framing their delightful dried flower arrangements in antique gold frames against black matting. (Or choose a rough-hewn walnut if you have a rustic outlook.)

For a spring present, 18th Century will now mail a five-inch arrangement of dried flowers in a small white bowl. Costs $5 and would be a lovely surprise.

Next Door: Coiffures, 18th Century Salon is right through the door, here at 52-55 State Road. This salon specializes, not in powdered wigs as its name might indicate, but in fashionable contemporary hairdos, cut with a professional hand by Mr. Charles who used to be at Bamber's. He has had 16 years' experience as a hair-dresser. In addition to styling and cutting, the shop gives Breck permanents, does discrete hair-coloring and gives manures. MUSIC

In Princeton

SCHWARZKOPF DELIGHTS

In McCarter Concert, The warm, clear, honey-colored voice of Elisabeth Schwarzkopf enchanted a McCarter Theater audience Monday night in the final concert of the Princeton University Series I.

Singing a program devoted entirely to lieder, Miss Schwarzkopf covered a range from the dark and somber tones of the Brahms "Liebestreu" to the sunniness of Schubert's "Inopinias," which she sang as an encore. She chose to sing from the songs of Schubert, Brahms, Wolf and Richard Strauss and she gave a nod to Schumann with his "Nussbaum" as an encore.

Schubert's "An die Musik" opened the evening's program and the group of six Schubert songs which Miss Schwarzkopf sang, "Der Einsame" was perhaps the most successful of these, although the familiar "Gretchen am Spinnrade" was moving, in the least romantic tradition.

The evening's program gave Miss Schwarzkopf an opportunity to exhibit the power of her voice and the control which she has over it. In the light hours of the child in Brahms' "Liebestreu" and the deep timbre of the answering mother, she displayed the flexibility of this voice to excellent advantage. The pianissimo in Brahms' "Sandmännchen" was entrancing, and it served to set off in fine style the exuberance of the "Meine Liebe ist Grün" which followed it.

Although Miss Schwarzkopf included several familiar lieder in her program—the "Nussbaum" mentioned above, "An Sylvia" and "Sandmännchen"—the audience responded most warmly to three somewhat less familiar songs which were part of the Strauss group, his "Ruh Schwebe," "Waldesklänge" and "Wienelchen" were sung with the warmth, lyricism and tenderness which are, in the modern ear, the most endearing features of these romantic German songs. The lovely blonde soprano and her beautiful voice were particularly welcome on the McCarter stage because no vocal artist appeared in last year's series and concert-goers had begun to wonder whether instrumentalists had edged them out. This year's soprano, Miss Schwarzkopf, was certainly worth the wait.

TO LEAD UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB: Walter Neuner, conductor of the Princeton University Glee Club, will conduct the Club in a concert this Sunday afternoon. The spring schedule for the Glee Club includes appearances with the Princeton College Chorus in Orange, New Jersey and McCarter Theater, and a spring vacation tour to Puerto Rico.

JOINT CONCERT SCHEDULED: Bryn Mawr Chorus included. Three major works for chorus and orchestra will be presented Sunday at 3:30 when the Bryn Mawr College Chorus, the Princeton University Glee Club and the University Orchestra join in a concert sponsored by the Friends of Music at Princeton. The concert is open to the public without charge.

Dach's cantata for Palm Sunday, "Himmelskönig, sei willkommen," will open the program. Robert L. Goodale, conductor of the Bryn Mawr group, will serve as conductor for this selection and he will employ a chamber orchestra drawn from Bryn Mawr and Princeton players. A harpsichord will be used.

The second half of the program will open with Brahms' setting of Schiller's poem, "Nänie," for full chorus and orchestra. Haydn's "Te Deum laudamus" will bring the program to a close. This work is scored for an unusually full orchestra, including three trumpets and tympani. Both the Haydn and the Brahms will be conducted by Walter Neuner of the University Glee Club.

QUARTET WILL PLAY

In Series II Concert, The Festival Quartet will give a concert devoted entirely to piano quartet music Monday at 8:30 in McCarter Theater. The program is the third of the Princeton University Concerts, Series II.

For several years, Victor Bablin, pianist; Symon Goldberg, violinist; William Primrose, violist and Nikolai Graudenz, cellist, have performed and taught at the Aspen Festival and Music School, Aspen, Colorado. During their summers at Aspen, they began to explore the literature of the piano and their research resulted in a series of chamber music programs performed at the Festival. In 1967, they made their New York debut as a group, although members of the quartet are, of course, well-known soloists on their respective instruments. They will play, for their McCarter concert, the piano quartet in G minor opus 45, by Faure, a work which was published posthumously. Mozart's quartet in E flat, often considered one of the most original of Mozart's chamber works, and Brahms' quartet in G minor, one of the most popular of Brahms' three piano quartets.

"GOODNIGHT IRENE"

Weavers Will Sing Here. The quartet of singers and instrumentalists who first popularized "Goodnight Irene," "On Top of Old Smokey" and other American folk songs, will come to Princeton next Friday and Saturday, February 26 and 27, for a folk recital in McCarter Theater.

The Weavers' Saturday night appearance has been sold out for over two weeks. Tickets for the extra Friday night show are still available at the University Store or by mail from Celebrity Shop, Box 487.

Members of The Weavers are Lee Hays, Ronnie Gilbert, Fred Hellerman, the guitarist-singer and Erik Darling, banjo player and singer. They have sung folk music together for many years and have been responsible for introducing American and European folk songs into the popular stream of American music. Carl Sandburg has said of the group, "When I hear America singing, The Weavers are there."

MUSIC CLUB TO MEET

For Piano, Vocal Music. The Princeton Music Club will meet next Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Charles Chandler, 107 Westcott Road, for a program of two-piano music.

Mrs. Mathilde McKinney and Mrs. Robert Slursky will perform at two pianos, and Miss Ruth McLean and Miss Janet Makaron will also play music written for two key boards. Mrs. Thomas Hillish, accompanied by Mr. Chester Stroup, will sing. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. W. D. Hayes and Mrs. Joseph Kell.

Report from THE MAYOR

Fluoridation? It is likely that the Borough Board of Health will ask the Mayor and Council to consider a resolution on the subject of fluoridation of Princeton's water supply. Based on its continuing studies, the Board feels strongly that affirmative steps should be taken.

It recognizes that the water company here is private but it feels that an official recommendation of the local governing bodies might be influential in persuading the company's management to install the necessary equipment. The Board of Health will undoubtedly make available the facts on which it bases its recommendations so that the Council and the public — may weigh its decision.

Fire Prevention. The fire prevention bureau established by borough ordinance last year is stepping up the tempo of its inspections. At Tuesday's Council meeting, Chief Pace and Chairman Stenme reported on the inspection of all gas stations and dry cleaning plants.

Violations were called to the attention of the owners and follow-up inspections will be made. The men report excellent cooperation from the public in connection with their work. In addition to their regular inspections, they are willing to make special inspections upon the request of any property owner.

A Lethal Job. The Borough's Finance Committee—Councilmen Lester, Sorenson and Redding—should be commended for the very thoughtful way in which they carried through their assignment on the 1960 budget. They met with Borough Clerk Bob Mooney and other borough staff and officials for many long hours in weighing the needs and deciding on the requests for the coming year.

Chairman Lester's brief summary of the significant revenue and expenditure changes impressed those in attendance at Tuesday's council meeting. The material will be repeated at length at the public hearing on the budget ordinance scheduled for March 8.

At The Library. Last week's meetings included a session of the Public Library board at which special greetings were offered to two of the trustees: to G. Vinson Duffield, who returned from a serious illness of several months, and to Lee H. Bristol, Jr., newly appointed to the board. Biggest single concern of the board remains the problem of trying to manage an ever-expanding service in the cramped and over-worked facilities at Bainbridge House. Their project for 1960: working toward community understanding of a proposal for joint operation of the public library under borough and township auspices.

Friday Open House. The regular weekly "Tell It to the Mayor" sessions will be held on Friday, February 19 and Friday, February 26, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

Two other meetings this week in search for solutions to pressing town problems: the Traffic Safety Committee (dealing with the Washington Road situation) and the Planning Board (tackling the consultant planner's report on the economy of Princeton).

RCA DEVELOPS SYSTEM

To Aid Thermonuclear Research. The Radio Corporation of America has developed one of the world's largest ultra-high vacuum systems as the heart of a research device which scientists will use in thermonuclear fusion research.

The RCA system includes an oval tube 40 feet long and eight inches in diameter. Within its stainless-steel walls, engineers have achieved a drop in pressure ten trillion times below that of the earth's sea level atmosphere. This is comparable to the near-vacuum of space more than a 1,000 miles above the earth.

This tube and its high-speed pumping equipment will form the core of the C-Stellator now under construction at the Forrester Research Center. In the Stellator, Princeton University scientists will explore ways of generating and containing the 100 million degree temperature at which thermonuclear fusion occurs.

Within the tube, the heavy hy-

SPORTS In Princeton

TIGERS AT CROSSROADS

In Hockey and Basketball. The next ten days should determine whether Princeton's hockey and basketball teams will earn first-division berths in their leagues or whether they'll finish somewhere closer to the cellar. In neither case had there been great reason to believe that a serious bid for a title could be made with the manpower available, but hopes have been that each Princeton entry might wind up in the top half of its league.

The Tiger quintet is tied for second with Cornell but has the rougher part of its schedule still ahead. Two contests, with defending champion Dartmouth (the first of them here Friday at 8) and a pair with a vastly improved Harvard quintet remain.

Cappy Carson's forces have also been dealt a near-lethal blow by the removal from the picture of sophomore Al Kaemmerlin for academic reasons. The 6-4 center was placed on probation last week, the effective date of Monday permitting him to play in the contests last weekend against Cornell and Columbia.

Larry Brennan, a 6-7 junior who started for the Tigers in December before Kaemmerlin had recovered from his knee operation, will replace him. Kaemmerlin's addition in January as a member of the starting five was followed by a five-game winning streak; his contributions being marked particularly by solid rebounding ability.

Harvard Moving Up. It will be Harvard Saturday night in Dillon Gym, with the Crimson riding the crest of a four-game winning streak in league play as it goes into Friday's game against Penn at the Palestra. When the season opened, one sportswriter tabbed Harvard as "one of the poorest Ivy teams in years," and the Cambridge quintet backed him up by losing its first four games impressively.

However, Coach Floyd Wilcox, one of the league's top chiefs of staff, revamped his offense during the mid-year exam break and has built a winning quintet around 6-4 sophomore Gary Borchard and Ed Cuffe, a junior of equal stature. Harvard has trimmed Cornell, Columbia, Yale and Brown in its last four outings — whipping the Bruins by a point (83-82) the night after they had achieved the unusual feat of beating Dartmouth (81-82) at Hanover in double overtime.

The Indians will bring virtually the same quintet to Dillon Gym that edged the Tigers, 69-68, at New Haven last March for the championship in a playoff game. Missing is Rudy LaRusso, who proved good enough to earn a starting berth with the Minneapolis Lakers in his first year in pro ball.

The champions' strength is built around four seniors, Gary Vandeweghe, Chuck Kaufman, Walt Sosnowski and Dave Barnes. Junior George Fanning, out for a while this month with a foot injury, or a fifth senior, 6-8 Dave

GEORGE BRAKELEY Princeton Swimmer

A record in eight dual meets this season of 13 victories in 15 events is indicative of better than fair swimming ability. The statistics become considerably more fascinating, however, when H. S. reported that in the two events he lost this winter, George Brakeley set a University record each time.

The 20-year-old junior is a distance swimmer, participating normally in the 220 and 440 (although he also entered the 100 against Cornell and varied them all to score a triple.) He's had doubles in four other meets (Army, Navy, Brown, Columbia) and swam only the 220 against N.Y.U. and Rutgers.

It was in the Colgate meet that Brakeley was beaten, but he chased his opposition so thoroughly that he was credited with Princeton records in each case: 2:12.1 in the 220 and 4:50.1 in the 440, both fine performances. In each race, the times stamp him as probable victor over Harvard and Yale, the two top teams in the East.

Unlike most top college swimmers, Brakeley gained experience not at school but at a summer camp in New Hampshire. St. Andrew's School in Delaware, where he prepared for Princeton, has no swimming team, but summers spent near a New Hampshire lake provided the opportunity he needed to improve steadily.

As a sophomore, he first broke the Princeton 440 record in the Eastern intercollegiate. That same season saw him win the Swamy Award, given for contributing most to the team through spirit, sportsmanship and improvement.

If his name sounds familiar to residents of Princeton, it should be. His grandfather is George A. Brakeley '07, University's vice-president emeritus and a resident of 33 Lilac Lane. For understandable reasons, Mr. B. is an early arrival at Dillon Pool whenever there's a swimming meet scheduled.

Standing 6-1 and weighing 185, Brakeley has a somewhat unorthodox style that wouldn't win awards for picturesque swimming. Coach Bob Cloutworthy obviously doesn't care a bit, pointing out that it's no hindrance to the number of first places his 20-year-old freestyler wins. With an unbeaten freshman team in the wings, varsity swimming will continue to move upward next year and George Brakeley's final season in Dillon Pool will contribute much to the welcome trend.

could not earn a deadlock.

A return contest with Cornell a week from Saturday ends Princeton's home season. They'll make trips to Cambridge on March 1 and to Hanover on March 5, hoping to win a road contest against an Ivy opponent other than the last-place Ithacans.

OTHER SPORTS

On Alumni Day Program. The University's mid-winter Alumni Day program will be marked by a variety of athletic events, only the swimming and fencing teams journeying away from home this weekend. Harvard's strong out-let, which has hopes of breaking Yale's long winning streak next week, will entertain the Tiger men at Cambridge, while the fencers will also travel to meet the Crimson.

The squash team, which met its first defeat last weekend at Harvard, takes on Yale in Dillon Hall at Harvard will be here to wrestle Jimmy Reed's mat team at 4:30, with the Tigers hoping for their second victory in a tough season.

TABLES TURNED ON FIS

By Hamilton High School. Having played its last away game at Lawrenceville School on Wednesday, the Princeton High basketball quintet will return home for its final two contests of the season. The Little Tigers meet Steinert at 3:30 and on February 26, will end their disappointing season against Hightstown.

The Hamilton High School five, one of the two teams that FIS has defeated this winter, alone for that loss Friday by whacking the visiting Blue and Whites, 75-60. In avenging itself, the Hornet quintet handed the losers their ninth straight defeat and 13th of the campaign.

FIS, in losing, played one of its most consistent games of the year, averaging 14, 15, 17, 14 in each quarter. The home team, however, managed to outshoot the Little Tigers in every quarter and broke open a close game in the opening minutes of the third period with a six-point spurt to go ahead, 38-29.

High scorer for the second time this season and for the second time in a row was Jack Hawkins with 19. Marty McGuinn, whose shooting kept the visitors in contention in the first half, followed with 17. Ted Meredith, 10 points, was the only other Little Tiger to hit double figures.

HUN DIVIDES PAIR

To Stay Above .500. The Hun basketball team will meet a much improved Pennington School quintet—which it beat earlier this year, 71-42—this Thursday afternoon at Pennington. When Hun meets Pliny on Wednesday, in another away game, it will be playing its final game of the season.

Captain Lou D'Ambrosio and Bill Gilman, the two top point-getters for the Red and Black, who have been averaging about 25 between them, could only score seven apiece against Delbarton Saturday. As a result, Hun lost its fifth game of the season, 62-50. The outcome was decided in the first half as the home team, red-hot in its shooting, hit for 14 of 30 shots while Hun, just as hot in missing, could only sink six of 32. Although the losers outscored Delbarton in the second half, they were never able to overcome the winner's 35-15 half-time lead.

Tommy Pelrone was high for Hun, scoring 11 points, ten of them coming on five one-handed push shots from about 20 feet out. Dave Savidge made a fine comeback in scoring ten points and grabbing off 11 rebounds while Paul Kadie hauled down nine rebounds and scored eight points. Pivotman Jay Mayne strengthened his bid to capture Al Landis' starting position by scoring seven points.

The Hun jayvee team, the best reserve squad to represent Hun in years, won its seventh game—it has lost three—beating the Delbarton Jayvees, 34-30. John Stewart, 6'11" junior, started his first first year, and Jim Byer, a 6'3" sophomore, each scored 15 points to account for nearly all of Hun's points.

Hun Tips Chestnut Hill. In a low-scoring contest played in the Seminary Gymnasium Thursday, Hun vanquished Chestnut Hill, 37-30, for its sixth victory. The Red and Black used a zone press against its taller opponents from the opening minutes of the game and was able to keep visitors' attack detailed often enough to escape with the win.

Bill Gilman with 14 and Lou D'Ambrosio with 13 were high for Hun. Paul Kadlec scored only six points but four of them came immediately after Chestnut Hill had come within one point of tying the score in the third quarter. Hun led at the half, 17-9.

BOWLING NOTES

New League Leaders. Changes in the first place standings of many Princeton leagues were the highlights of last week's bowling action. In the Faculty loop, the Physics squad, which had one tie and no losses, took the lead back from the previously undefeated Washington Development team. Sculcrati (18) regained a one-point lead over Wheeler in the Mixed League.

A three-way tie resulted in the Women's Industrial League with Decker's, the Hi-L's and Cliffl's all with 14 points. Nassau Del took first place by one game over Chover Motors and Ammon Hours with 28 points each in the Women's League. The Rookies came up to the Nelson Glass at 21 points each in the "A" loop, with three teams tied at 22.

Remaining in top spots last week, however, were Tiger Garage, with a one-game edge over Womgryn Construction (2) in the Industrial League, and the Sportsmen No. 2 and Shelton Motors, in continuing their first-place tie in the "B" loop, two points ahead of four teams with 10 points each.

High individual game for the week went to Ed Lempore in the Industrial League with a 269, which he coupled with 185-21 for a 665 series. Other top scores included John Bryan and Pete Hoffman, 211 each; and Ralph Kleiber, 212-209, in the Industrial League; Jay Luckner, 225; Rudy Lehnert, 221; and Lars Christianson, 215, in the Faculty loop; and Ray Simmons, 233; Mike Pinell, 222; Dick Edwards, 213; and Joe Balzano, 212, in the "B" league.

Diane Fugli pured the Mixed League with her first 280 game. Tops in the Women's Industrial loop were Dol Moore, 202; Joan Dunn, 191; Janice Cliffl, 187; Peg Brown, 182; and Myrtle Smith, 180. High for the Women's League was Elizabeth Brown with 203, followed by Arlene Dick, 196; Marilyn Silvestre, 195; Barbara Danner, 191-180; Betty Harris, 190-178; Dot Wheeler, 189; Millie Trani, 184; Dot Moore, 181; and Betty Snyder, 180.

Question Of The Week

August Pierre, 76 Linden Lane, retired: Six weeks should be enough of a vacation for kids. That's all I had when I went to school. What do they do when they are off, anyway? Just get into trouble, that's all.

Mr. Joseph Kearns, 129 Valley Road, housewife: Oh, I don't think so, no. I wouldn't want my children in school the whole year. I think they should have some time off in which to enjoy themselves.

Alvan Hubbard, 19 VanDeventer: I'm not in favor of a longer school term because teacher's salaries would have to be increased and that would mean an increase in taxes. I don't think grammar school kids should be made to go the year round, but it would be a good idea for high school kids—it would take them off the streets.

Miss Jean Dow, Choir College student: No, I don't think everyone should have to go 12 months a year. If they want to keep the school plant open the whole year by having only part of the children go at one time, that is all right, but don't make them go a full year.

Donald Winner, Washington Road, Rocky Hill, watchmaker: I don't think they should. If kids have to go 12 months a year, they'll get bored and be worse off than they are now going nine. Press them too hard and they won't learn as much. They look forward to their vacation. A vacation, especially for the kids in high school, gives them a chance to earn some money.

Mrs. Glenn Snyder, 66 College Road, housewife: I don't think the year round, but shorter summer vacations would be in order. Vacations patterned on the European version which are four to six weeks long.

Richard L. Croushore, Fairless Hills, salesman: I'd say on a limited scale it would be fine. I'd be inclined to think that education of a co-operative nature conducted through business houses where children could pick up practical training in addition to theoretical training would be fine to have during the summer. I'm all for kids working during the summer if they can get a combination of both, but I don't think you could do it on a full scale or year-round basis. You run into the problem of teachers needing time off for study to advance themselves.

Robin Pittendrigh, 187 Prospect Avenue, Princeton High School sophomore: I think it's a very bad idea because, after nine months of work, I think we need a vacation. I like vacation too much to give it up.

Jerry Gildard, 12 Shady Brook Lane, Princeton High School senior: I think it is a good idea and I would be willing to go to school throughout the year. If we would be allowed to do all our homework in school so that we could have our nights free, and if we could also have every Wednesday off to make up for no summer vacation.

Connie Yark, 25 Knoll Drive, Princeton High School sophomore: I think it is a bad idea because it is too hot to study during the summer and it would be impossible to get any work done. If the installed air-conditioning in the school, it would be all right.

Priscilla Rogers, 210 Shady Brook Lane, Princeton High School sophomore: I don't think the kids would work as hard if they knew they weren't getting a summer vacation. I also believe it would be too hot to study during the summer. We get enough education in nine months, why stretch it to a year?

Princeton Manor

Children can romp in the spacious surrounding woods. Mother will delight in the conveniences to shopping and schools. And Father will appreciate the solid construction of our homes as a wise capital gains hedge against inflation.

The Princeton Manor Construction Co. will build from your ideas, your architect's plans, or from over 200 designs in our files — on your lot or our land. Locally owned and managed, the Princeton Manor Construction Co. is currently adding fifteen to twenty custom-built homes a year in Central New Jersey. Consult one of our building sites in the Princeton area. You may use your lot all or part of the down payment on your new home. A few of our extra services are unusually favorable financing and free consultation with an interior decorator.
